

2020 Presidential Debate

Where Do You Stand On The Issues?

Rate your level of support for the issues below. During the Presidential Debates, rate how the candidates support these issues to determine which candidate most aligns with your values.

Elected officials should support the separation of religion and government at the federal, state, and local level.

Elected officials should not endorse or support one religion over another and should support nonreligious people.

Religious organizations and houses of worship should not receive taxpayer financial assistance at the federal, state, or local level.

Corporations and non-profit organizations should not be allowed to discriminate or withhold services because of someone's religious preference, race, gender, or sexual orientation.

Our elected officials should use science and evidence-based research to make policy decisions.

Climate change is a reality and our elected officials must act aggressively to protect the planet from our impact on the environment.

Access to affordable health care is a basic right and should be available to everyone, regardless of employment.

Women's reproductive health care is between a woman and her doctor - our government and corporations should not be involved.

Elected officials must address systemic race, gender and economic inequality, especially for Black, Brown, and Indigenous people in our society.

Public policy should enhance LGBT+ protections and ensure equality and civil rights.

Religious beliefs are not a justification to discriminate based on sexual orientation, gender expression, or gender identity.

Our government should not fund private, religious education through vouchers or any other means.

The right to vote is essential to a functioning democracy and elected officials should work to remove obstacles to voting and increase voter engagement.
